Keefe Returns To Treat Cancer

Dr. C. F. Keefe Returns From California at Request of Local Residents to Treat Several Cases—Has Had Considerable Success in That Line.

Dr. C. F. Keefe, a former local physician, who is now located at Los Angeles, California, is the guest of his host, Mrs. M. A. Keefe, at her home, No. 115 Pearl street, and expects to remain in the city for a month or so. Dr. Keefe looks fit and trim and the climate of California has evidently agreed with him.

The visit of Dr. Keefe to Kingston brings to light an interesting story which goes back about ten years when Daniel J. Murphy of 25 Spring street called at Dr. Keefe's office, which was then located on East Street, for treatment for a cancer on his lip. So successful was the treatment that the cancer disappeared and Mr. Murphy has not been troubled with it since.

A week or so ago Mr. Murphy paid a visit to the home of an old friend, who had been afflicted with the same disease but who had not received treatment for it, and the result of that visit caused Mr. Murphy to telegraph Dr. Keefe, asking him if he would return to Kingston to treat several cases of facial cancer.

As a result of that telegram Dr. Keefe arrived in Kingston several days ago and is now treating several cases of facial cancer in this city. The treatment requires several weeks to produce results. During the years that Dr. Keefe practiced in Kingston he had treated about twenty-five local residents afflicted with facial cancer and had cured 90 per cent of that number. The case he was unable to cure was too far advanced when he was called. Just what Dr. Keefe uses in curing facial cancer is not known but those who have had cancers removed from the face by him state it has the appearance of a white powder which is laid over the cancer and held in place by bandages.

According to other physicians facial cancer can be cured in its incipient stages but after the cancer gets into the blood a cure is impossible, even with an operation.

Dempsey's Fine Record As Mayor of Kingston

Republican Candidate for Head of City Government Is a Man Who Has Made Good—Brief Outline of Some of His Activities and Accomplishments As Alderman-at-Large and As Mayor.

EDGAR J. DEMPSEY.

Mayor Edgar J. Dempsey, who is the Republican candidate to succeed himself as head of the city's government, took over the reins of government when they were dropped by the late Mayor Morris Block, and has made good in the office. A man of keen judgment and a thorough knowledge of the city affairs, Mayor Dempsey was unanimously selected by the members of the Republican party as their candidate for mayor this fall.

Mayor Dempsey was born in this city and has resided here all his life. He received his education in the public schools of the city and was graduated from old Ulster Academy, and later took up a business course in Spencer's Business School. After graduating from business school he entered the employ of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad, and has remained with that company for the past twenty years, gradually advancing until at the present time he holds the position of stationmaster.

During the World War when the federal government took over all the railroads of the country he was appointed federal treasurer of the railroad by the United States Railroad Administration.

Elected, Then Re-elected. In 1923 he was selected as the Republican candidate for the office of alderman-at-large and was elected by a handsome majority. He was again re-elected two years later and served in that office until November, 1926, when at the death of the late Mayor Morris Block he automatically became mayor of the city.

While serving the city as president of the common council, Mayor Dempsey made himself thoroughly familiar not only with the duties of the common council but also made a study of the work of the various city departments and was well equipped at the time he became mayor to fill the position.

At the time Mayor Dempsey assumed the reins of city government the budgets of the various city departments were in the course of preparation and it was due to his ability and keen business judgment that the budgets were drafted and prepared in the specified time.

Has Attended All Meetings. As those who know Mayor Dempsey intimately say, he is a man who can be depended upon. While serving the city as head of the common council he was in attendance at all of the meetings of that body, and since he became mayor he has attended all of the meetings of the common council and the various city boards and committees, spending considerable time and devoting much attention to the work of the city.

In the past few years the city's business has grown to such an extent that it is the largest business enterprise in Ulster county having the handling of vast sums of money. Mayor Dempsey has seen to it that every penny raised by taxation has been expended wisely.

Mayor Dempsey has always believed and still believes in a living wage for a fair day's work, and during the brief time he has served as mayor he has worked in harmony with the personnel bequeathed him by the Block administration, making no change in the appointments, that were made by the late mayor. Square Deal for All. Mayor Dempsey's fairness and squareness has made him many friends as he has thoroughly exemplified that he firmly believes in the square deal for all. Since assuming office of mayor he has been active in all civic matters, and there are few men who are better equipped than he to have charge of the city affairs.

Mayor Dempsey is seeking election as mayor this fall on his record while holding and fulfilling the duties of that office and he should be returned to office by a handsome majority in November.

FIRE DAMAGES RAILROAD GRILL AT SANGERTIES. An alarm was sent to the Sangeries fire department at 8:15 on Tuesday morning which brought out the entire department to fight a scrub-burn blaze which did a considerable amount of damage to the rear of Railroad's cafe which was used as a grill. The fire was located in a one story building and owing to the construction it was difficult for the firemen to reach it as the fire was mostly in the attic of this room.

How the fire started is a mystery but it is thought to have started near a chimney where there is a fireplace. The entire furniture is damaged and the interior of the building is ruined by smoke and water.

There is insurance carried by the John Snyder and Mrs. H. M. Darbee agencies which will partly cover the loss.

MASONIC CLUB FAIR WILL BE EXCEPTIONAL. The annual fair of the Masonic Club which will be held jointly with the Order of Amaranth this year, on October 25, 26, 27, and 28, promises to be an exceptional affair.

Paul Zurek and his orchestra will have charge of the music, hence dancing and the musical program is an assured success.

GASOLINE FIRE AT THE TIDEWATER OIL COMPANY. An overturned one-gallon can of gasoline became ignited in the yard of the Tidewater Oil Corporation on East Street about 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, causing a blaze of fire which was turned in from Box 10, in which the fire department responded. The fire was extinguished with the aid of chemicals and there was no damage.

Search Woods for Rebel Generals

General and Alameda Believed to be Attempting to Reach the Coast—Calles Tracks History of the Movement.

Mexico City, Oct. 12 (AP).—Pursued through the wild mountain country of western Vera Cruz, the rebel general Arturo Gomez and General Alameda today were believed to be attempting to reach the coast where passage in a fishing boat or other small craft would put them beyond the reach of the government. Hot on their trail were scouting parties of federal troops under command of General Gonzalo Escobar, who on Monday reported that he had disposed of the federal forces and captured the main body, leaving Gomez and Alameda with only about 100 followers.

A dozen small groups scattered in every direction, are declared by the government to be all that are left of the rebel column, which it is stated, never exceeded 1,000 men.

Taking cognizance of reports that the government had manufactured a case of treason against Gomez and General Francisco Serrano who was recently executed, President Calles has issued a statement tracing the history of the movement.

He declares he was aware as early as August that the revolt was being planned; that he sought to dissuade General Serrano from the attempt and that he refrained from action, only because of his hope that the plotters would abandon their enterprise.

The President said that, after failing to strike at the opening of Congress, the plotters set the date of their attempt for September 15, in connection with the national independence day, and later for September 27, during the military maneuvers.

Finally the revolt was begun the night of October 2, when, in the President's words, General Alameda "took to the field with those troops which he could deceive or induce to his rebellious adventure."

Disclaim Threat Of Third Party

Western Republican Senators Disclaim Purpose of Bonding Together in Preference to the Great Circle Course in the Hope of Avoiding Ice and Possibly Being Able to Fly Over for a Distance of 1,244 Miles, when they Planned to Change to Northeast for the Rest of the Distance. While the course followed the shipping lanes all the way, Haldeman said he would rely entirely on the plane's instruments, an earth inductor compass, drift indicator, turn and bank indicator and altimeter.

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP).—Western Republican senators, belonging to the so-called progressive group, have announced their intention to unite "for solidarity of action" in consideration of presidential candidates and legislative problems of the next Congress.

Disclaiming any threat of forming a third party, the western senators with Senator Borah of Idaho as their spokesman, declared in a statement, that their purpose in banding together was based on the theory that "the Republican party is a national party and not an eastern party."

While Senator Norris of Nebraska, a progressive leader, has not indicated his desire to enter the presidential preference primaries in western agricultural states, the western senatorial group expressed unanimity to support him in any state in which he will consent to have his name before the voters.

Other members of the group included Senators Fraser and Nye of North Dakota and Brookhart of Iowa.

When eastern members of Congress confer upon problems of their section they are regarded as "regular" and some times as active and patriotic, the statement added, but western senators and representatives in a similar conference seem to be regarded as "irregular, insurgent and radical."

This view is based on the assumption, declared the announcement, among some easterners, that "Republican policies can only originate within certain territory and Republican policies can emanate only from certain quarters."

Register Friday And Saturday

Friday and Saturday are the first two days of registration in Kingston. The polls in the various wards will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. If you are not registered you can not vote at the November election.

The voting machines that are to be used at the November election will be found at all the polling places and those who register will be given an opportunity to operate the machines and become familiar with them. All of the officials on registration day have received instructions on how to operate the machines so as to be able to instruct voters in their use.

On the way back they stopped over at Philadelphia and Ocean Grove. The day they were at the fair there were 71,666 people present with a grand stand to seat 12,000.

American Girl Speeds Over Atlantic Ocean

Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman Follow Longest Over-water Hop on Record In Trip to Paris—Sighted About 400 Miles East Of New York—Weather Conditions Good.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—The monoplane American Girl, presently being speeded eastward over the Atlantic Ocean toward Paris today, bearing that name in honor of a realization of her ambition, is the first woman to fly across the Atlantic.

The 25-year-old Florida aviator, who said she was relying upon God and the prayers of her mother for a successful termination of the venture, hopped off from Roosevelt Field at 5:04 p. m. yesterday with Captain George Haldeman as co-pilot. If all went well they expected to reach their goal in 24 to 48 hours. A hop of 28 hours would put them in Paris at 7:04 a. m. Thursday, eastern standard time, or 12:04 p. m. Thursday Paris time.

The fliers were following a course that called for the longest over-water hop on record, a flight of nearly 3,500 miles along the shipping lanes directly from Long Island to the French coast. Seven other transatlantic airmen made over-water hops of approximately 1,900 miles from Newfoundland to the Irish coast on flights to England and the continent.

Although it called for a total flying distance of some 3,500 miles, the more southern route was selected in preference to the Great Circle course in the hope of avoiding ice and possibly being able to fly over for a distance of 1,244 miles, when they planned to change to northeast for the rest of the distance. While the course followed the shipping lanes all the way, Haldeman said he would rely entirely on the plane's instruments, an earth inductor compass, drift indicator, turn and bank indicator and altimeter.

Weather conditions, termed by Dr. James H. Kimball, of the weather bureau, as probably the most unfavorable of any of the transatlantic flights, faced the fliers. After the first 200 miles, he said, the winds would tend to send the plane to the south of its course and at 1,200 miles out the wind would come at almost right angles across the course of the plane. A few hundred miles further, where the ship was expected to skirt the first low pressure area, he said the winds would swing "right on the tail" of the plane and then to the south, tending to send the ship north of its course.

Then would come tail winds, he said, until the fliers entered the worst weather of the trip, a storm and fog area that has hung 600 to 1,000 miles east of France. The fliers were advised by Kimball to try to climb above this low pressure area, suggesting that they cruise at 10,000 feet or higher. Over France, he said, the weather was likely to be clear, with good visibility night or day.

"It's now or never," Haldeman said when the situation was described to him and he was told that conditions were better than probably they would be for weeks. A conference was called and when Miss Elder told her co-pilot "it's up to you," he replied: "All right, we'll go."

Speed of 130 Miles. Haldeman said the plane was capable of a speed of 130 miles an hour and was expected to maintain a cruising radius of around 110 miles an hour. It carried 520 gallons of gas, a fuel supply considered sufficient to carry them 4,400 miles, and 26 gallons of oil. The loaded plane weighed 5,500 pounds, 350 pounds more than Lindbergh's craft.

Emergency equipment for use in case of a forced landing at sea included a rubber life suit for each of the pilots, with a gear for covering the head. In the front of each suit was a pocket containing a breath-condenser to provide drinking water, and a sealed canister of emergency rations.

Small Radio Set. The ship also was equipped with a small radio set which had a radius of 75 miles. It weighed only 14½ pounds and was equipped with a 14½ antenna. Haldeman said that in case the plane was forced down he would operate the set on a 520 meter wave length from a battery capable of supplying electrical energy for six hours. As nearly a score of ocean liners were in the path to be followed by the American Girl, the fliers felt that in case of a forced landing their equipment would sustain them on the surface until help arrived.

The leader of the American Girl, which weighed 5 pounds and included roast chicken, two vacuum bottles of coffee and beef tea, turkey sandwiches, cheese sandwiches, orange juice and chocolate.

Health Board Met Tuesday

First Session Held at Central Fire Station and Health Matters Discussed—Influenza Clinics from the Successful.

The board of health held a brief session Tuesday evening at the Central Fire Station and health matters discussed. The board of health, composed of Dr. James Connolly, chairman, and Mrs. Mary O'Neil, health nurse, in attending the session at the fire station, their clinics being conducted at the station, were hearing reports by the board.

Three clinics have already been held and the last clinic at the fire station was held on Monday afternoon at the usual hour.

When the clinics are closed there will be about 400 cases of influenza in Kingston, with many have been in the hospital. Influenza is the result of the present clinics and those held in former years. Dr. Connolly informed the board, he would make a report of the work accomplished when the clinics closed.

A communication from the State Health Department was read in regard to the corn borer. At the last meeting of the health board it was reported that a local resident had purchased some corn from a man which had been grown in Dutchess county and in which he found what he thought was a corn borer. The matter was taken up with the State Health Department which replied that as far as known there had never been any European corn borers found in Dutchess or Ulster counties. The stalk borer and the common corn worm have both been found and confused with the European corn borer many times. The spread of the European corn borer cannot be prevented as moths fly each spring and are carried when in flight long distances by the wind. The communication was filed.

Owing to the absence of the chairman of the sanitary committee, Commissioner Moore, no report was submitted on the question of whether the board should grant a permit to a man to maintain a white rat colony in the city to raise the animals for experimental purposes in hospitals and laboratories, and no action was taken.

Bills and claims were read and audited and the board adjourned.

Mrs. Grayson to Hop Off Tonight

Route to Copenhagen Still Undetermined as Plans to Forward for Flight—Makes Estimate of 35 Hours for Journey.

Old Orchard, Me., Oct. 12 (AP).—Mrs. Frances W. Grayson, allowing her male companions to extend their sleep for several hours, was up early today to direct preparations for the start of her Sikorsky plane, the Dawn, for Copenhagen, at 5 o'clock this evening, if conditions remain as favorable as they now are.

Mechanics who had remained at work until late last night resumed the final grooming of the hydro airplane before dawn this morning. Everything appears to be progressing favorably toward the start as planned.

About two hours after she had left for the hangar, Wilmer Stultz, the pilot, appeared in the hotel lobby with word that both he and Brice Goldsborough, the navigator and radio operator, who complete the crew, had "slept wonderfully."

Mrs. Grayson said that the start would be made as late this evening as possible, so that they might have daylight for a landing in Copenhagen, if they are able to do that far. She made a rough estimate of 35 hours for the journey, although, she said, it might vary considerably either way.

The route was still undetermined this morning with a final decision expected only a short time before the take off.

"In the theatre world, Luckies have become almost universal. Stage folks are very critical—voices must be kept in condition, throat irritation is a handicap. Obregon Will Not Withdraw Nogales, Sonora, Mex., Oct. 12 (AP).—General Alvaro Obregon, sole candidate in Mexico's presidential field after the execution of one opponent, General Francisco Serrano and the revolt of another, General Arnulfo Gomez, arrived here today.

In an interview with the Associated Press, he declared that the "so-called revolution" is at an end and the plot against the government now existing will come to an end.

Quick action by the Central government in suppressing Serrano and his followers and the immediate coming in of Gomez by loyal troops had frustrated all plans of a revolutionary nature, he said.

Obregon appeared to be in excellent spirits and optimistic of his own future as well as that of Mexico.

Asked if he had any intention of withdrawing from the presidential race "in the interests of peace" and permitting a man who would be supported by both factions to run, the veteran Mexican leader replied: "No."

EXHIBIT OF ANCIENT ART ATTRACTS ATTENTION

The show window of William O'Reilly, Broadway newsdealer, is commanding considerable attention owing to a display of Gesso-Craft made by William H. Marnett of this city. It is an ancient decorative art and the local artist used it to advantage in reproducing the illustration printed on the cover of a popular magazine.

Gesso-Craft is an old art to which is attached the romance and beauty of the ancient days in far-off lands. It was used in the days of Egyptian kings as an art of decoration and much of it is preserved to this day on the mummy cases of the Egyptian rulers. For years it has been used by manufacturers to imitate wood carvings and moldings, also in producing medallions and plaques of metal.

The Kingston artist says that one need not necessarily possess much artistic skill to accomplish the work and that many things may be decorated with it about the home. Mr. Marnett does not make his livelihood doing the art work but says that it affords a pleasant pastime.

ELEANOR GUNN On Fashions

Tweed Ensembles, Velvet Costumes, Brimless Hats, and Colorful Jewelry Accessories are Important Additions to One's Wardrobe.

New York.—A season that offers both tweed and velvet is a season not lacking in an appreciation of the needs of modern living. Women of today demand sturdy clothes, not only for country wear, but for travel and the business careers in which so many are engrossed. Tweeds are as smart as smart can be at the moment. The tweed ensemble is first choice of the woman who follows outdoor sports, travels, or goes about generally in all sorts and conditions of weather.

The two-piece type of dress is especially appropriate for tweed, and is, of course, only smart when carefully fitted and well-tailored. Over this goes the coat, usually from three-quarter to seven-eighths in length, which obviously permits a glimpse of the skirt beneath. This, in the case of tweeds and mannish suits generally, is rather inclined to revert to the wrap-around type.

Flat, stitched pleats, freed almost at the hem, are used as well, but the tendency in such skirts is toward as straight a line as is consistent with the effort universally made to avoid straight lines. Inserts and applied bands are excellent trimming devices for this type of costume, and ruffles play a not unimportant part in preserving a slim, well-fitted shoulder line.

Velvet As a Coat Fabric.

Although the season's slogan is a greater elaboration in dress, there are a sufficient large number of simply garbed women to preserve a balance. That a great deal of the simplicity is relative, and that one must resist one's opinion of fabrics considerably to reach the frame of mind to classify velvet as a simple fabric appropriate for any occasion for which one heretofore wore tweed.

Velvet cannot be denied. It is used alone and in all manner of combinations, such as with crepe, satin, lame, lace and woven fabrics. What is more, velvet has assumed consequences as a coat fabric, and is, especially in black, well liked for this purpose and also for the formal frock with deep décolletage, such as one will anticipate as a favorite for the season's opening night at the Metropolitan Opera House.

For some time there has been an occasional ripple of excitement caused by rumors of a revival of steel trimmings. The season starts

Raps One of Baumes Laws

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP).—Criticism of one of the Baumes anti-crime laws was voiced before the court of appeals today by Assemblyman Frederick L. Hackenberg of New York. Mr. Hackenberg, in arguing his appeal in behalf of Peter A. Siler, under sentence of death for murder, declared that the rights of the defendant had been taken away by some of the Baumes laws, emphasizing the compulsion now placed upon the defense in a criminal action to make its opening to the jury before any evidence is taken.

Siler was convicted of the murder of a policeman named Masterson in connection with a holdup in New York city two years ago. He was captured at Old Forge, in the Adirondacks, after battle in which an alleged accomplice, Walter Tipping, was killed. Another alleged accomplice named Callahan became insane while confined in the Tombs prison and was committed to the Matteawan Hospital.

Paris Ready to Receive Ruth

Paris, Oct. 12 (AP).—The air force at Le Bourget Field is on its toes today in preparation for receiving the American Girl.

There was a time when arrangements had to be made in advance for sensational landings from abroad, but the officials there have become resigned to the American disregard for red tape and they have been more or less ready for any one from anywhere ever since Lindbergh dropped out of the sky.

Paris is taking Ruth Elder's flight in the American Girl with all the calmness that befits a city that has experienced several week long frenzies of excitement this year over aviation. Even surprise is lacking that the plane started after the transatlantic season was supposed to have been officially closed by the weather bureaus.

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 12, 1927.

As the inundated areas have been fertilized with mud, and as contemplated new steps may prevent a recurrence of the disaster, an optimistic President seems to think that even the people hardest hit have reason to hold the Mississippi flood in grateful remembrance.

We read that many Pennsylvania college football boys who played in the intolerable heat of October 1 lost ten to twelve pounds in weight. Here is suggestion for the too heavy of both sexes whose consuming ambition is to "reduce". Really hard exercise in a high temperature will bring its reward.

Other States, not any too satisfied with conditions within their own borders, will sympathize with and add their good wishes to the effort now being made "to rescue Indiana from the unclean clutches of the manipulators and traders who, unlike Stephenson, succeeded both in keeping out of jail and in retaining their hold on the business of a State that is really sound at heart, but which fell into the hands of the harpies."

Prof. Edward A. Ross, who contends that what the world needs is larger food crops and fewer mouths to be fed by them, may be pleased to hear that the Kansas Free Fair has stopped awarding an annual prize to the parents of five children or more "because large families are now so scarce in Kansas." It is rather curious that Prof. Ross fails to perceive that the size of the crops is apt to be determined by the number of the mouths to feed (and the hands to work), just as the aggregate of all production is dependent on the size of the population.

CLEANER FICTION PREDICTED.

That there will be "a healthy reaction" in the realm of the novel is a pleasantly surprising prediction to come from "gloomy" Dean Inge, who usually is able to see little good ahead of the human race. The Dean recalls that Cromwellism followed an era of profligacy and that Victorian sobriety succeeded the "depraved morals of the regency." He believes that history will inevitably repeat itself in this particular also, and even now he thinks there are signs of a coming "healthy reaction" against the present looseness in fiction. He clearly recognizes novels as an influence on morals, regarding increase in divorce and growing public tolerance of impermanent marriage as sinister developments for which fiction writers are largely responsible.

The Dean's prediction will be welcomed by many readers of taste, quite apart from any zeal for the promotion of public morals. To very many the "sex" novel has become a bore. Its everlasting adultery-theme has been worn threadbare, and, instead of providing a "kick," fails to interest and induces something like intellectual nausea. It is some time since William McFee lamented that "nice women are reading books their husbands would like to put in the garbage can," and surely "nice women" ought to reach the stage wherein, with their curiosity satisfied, they will turn up their noses at literary filth. Even now there is a pretty general recognition that the plea of "realism" is pure make-believe. It is self-evident that the better side of life is just as "real" as the ugly side, as well as much more agreeable to contemplate.

FLOOD-RELIEF.

Mr. Coolidge was charged with lack of sympathy for the victims of the disastrous Mississippi flood when he declined to call an extra session of Congress to provide a relief fund, but even his critics will find basis for commendation in his address on Flood relief to the Red Cross at Washington. "Never before," he said, "have so many governmental departments been used in disaster-relief work." The War and Navy departments, the Coast Guard and Light House services, the Public Health Service and the Department of Agriculture, he said, were called on for engineers, boats and crews, airplanes and radio equipment, when the flood was at its worst, and in the later stages of restoration. The States were prompt to render assistance through their militia, their health and other departments. Then there was the work of local agencies, and of hundreds of individual volunteers in the hour, of the greatest emergency. "The story is one of the fine chapters in American history," said the President. "A record of generous response to the call for funds, of the high devotion to duty of those engaged in saving life and relieving distress, and of endurance and courage shown by the people of the stricken area."

Mr. Coolidge did not say that Congress would be requested to provide adequate assistance toward the rehabilitation of the multitudes still surrounded by ruins, but he did say—pending the completion of the engineers' report—that "we propose to solve the problem of flood control so that such a situation may never again have to be met." If this great consummation should really be achieved, it will then be possible to look back upon the country's most destructive calamity as "a blessing in disguise," as Mr. Coolidge seems to think it may already be regarded. But the multitudes left destitute, and now facing a long uphill struggle will hardly be able to adopt such a view.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

TENNIS LEG.

You have been hearing about tennis elbow for years, and now they have what they call "tennis leg."

This is a pain at, or just below the calf of the leg, and is so painful that the patient usually keeps off the leg or hobbles about in great distress.

Now as this condition occurs in a great many people who do not play tennis, it may be worth our while to consider it.

What happens is that the tendon that lifts the heel up when you raise on your toes gets stretched, and sometimes some fibres are torn. You can get some idea of the size of this tendon by taking hold of it just above the heel bone.

You can understand how important this tendon is because it really lifts the whole weight of the body when you raise yourself on your toes. In fact, it is the largest tendon or "cord," in the body.

Naturally a tennis player, in serving, goes up on his toes, and holds himself poised there while he serves. And of course all through the game he has to be "on his toes."

Now one of the simplest ways of getting this trouble in a mild form, is by wearing a pair of low heel shoes after having worn high heels for some time.

In the army the low heel shoe caused many recruits to drop out at first, because the low heel "stretched" this tendon so much.

Where real damage, real tearing has taken place, due to violent effort, the treatment is to lie down, point the toes downwards, and raise the heel, and strap up the foot in this condition. This allows the torn fibres to knit, and recovery takes place.

In mild cases where only a stretching has taken place, the simple method of putting a large piece of absorbent cotton under the heel will raise up the heel and take the stretch off the tendon. Strips of adhesive over the sore spot helps also.

Of course in all these conditions, the use of heat and massage, brings about a cure in much shorter time, besides giving the patient relief from the pain.

Kingston Oil Co. Fills New Tanks

The first shipment of gasoline was received Tuesday afternoon by the Kingston Oil Company for its tanks recently installed on the property of the former Newark Line and Company on East Strand. The shipment of gasoline was pumped to the tanks from the oil barge No. 48 of the Atlantic Refining Company in charge of the Tug Van Dyke of a Philadelphia concern and consisted of 250,000 gallons.

Work is still being done to put the oil plant in proper condition and the facility of handling all products is the main object in view. The oil and gasoline, pumped from the barge runs through a long line of pipe from the dock adjacent to the Gill cement store house to the large tanks several hundred feet away, across the road, on the oil company's property.

The office buildings from which the business of the Kingston Oil Company will be carried on are nearing completion and the garages where the trucks and equipment of the concern will be kept are rapidly being finished by a corps of workers.

CASES DISPOSED OF IN POLICE COURT.

Louis Hicks and Edward Arnold, sixteen year old boys arrested Tuesday night in connection with the theft of Edwin Gregory's car Sunday, were arraigned before Judge Shufeldt in police court this morning and held to await the action of the grand jury.

It is alleged that Arnold and Hicks with James Kiernan, arrested Monday and now awaiting a hearing before Judge Shufeldt next Tuesday, appropriated Mr. Gregory's car to transport them to New York city. The auto was taken from Spring street Sunday night when the owner had parked it. The boys drove as far as Newburgh with the car, when it suddenly stopped. Arnold and Hicks are said to have proceeded to New York by another means of travel while Kiernan returned to Kingston. Amiel Humbert, arrested here Saturday charged with being disorderly and vagrant, was sentenced to the Albany penitentiary by Judge Shufeldt for ninety days. Humbert informed the court that he came to Kingston from Michigan. He also admitted not having worked for a prolonged period and said he was arrested once before while visiting Boston, Mass., for trespassing on the green.

J. R. Cotner of 414 Hawthorne street, Williamsport, Pa., arrested Monday by Officer Hicks for failing to observe the traffic signal at the Rondout Creek Bridge, forfeited $5 bail by not appearing in court this morning.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BOWEN

THE BATS

The bats were so glad when the summer came.

For a long, long time they had been staying in the caves and hiding away in the tops of the corners and crevices.

Soon they will be hiding away again.

So I must not forget to tell you the story of their great early summer jollification they had some little while ago.

One of the bats had said it was high time to go out into the world, but another bat had said it was still too chilly.

Then a bat said:

"Well, what have we wings for if they're not to be used?"

And after that it was decided that they should be off.

They waited until it began to grow dark—and then some of the ones who hadn't been sleeping very well got up and flew about a little while.

Then the others who had been sound asleep woke up just as it became very, very dark.

Oh, how the bats do love the night! They love it just as much as the birds love the daytime and the sun.

For, though bats have wings, they are not at all like birds, and they aren't in the least friendly with any of them.

So off they started on the jollification.

First they whizzed through the air, practicing their different ways of flying.

And after they had all the strength back into their wings, they reached the garden of an old, deserted house.

Off They Started.

where they stopped for the rest of the night.

There they told stories and chatted and chatted.

For they had a great deal to say after their long sleep, and they ran races, and did tricks, and frightened people they saw coming along the road.

They would get so near that each person would say:

"Oh, dear me, I must cover up my head or that bat will get caught in my hair."

The bats thought that was a great joke, as they had no intentions of caging themselves in somebody's hair when they could be in the jollification.

But they did enjoy playing pranks on the grownups.

And soon, much too soon, daylight came.

But what do you suppose happened?

Such a wonderful ending to their jollification.

Didn't those thoughtful little brownies, who had known all about the bats' jollification—and feeling rather sorry for the bats because they don't have such very good times—send some magic air boats which picked up the sleepy bats as they flew along.

Then they were carried back to their cold, hard beds in the crevices of the rocks—which they thought were so comfortable!

And as they crept into bed, there were never so many happy bats and pleased bats as these were at having had air-boats bring them home from their jollification.

Soon now, though, they will be taking their winter rest.

His Social Standing

A widower with two small sons recently decided that the principal of the school attended by his youngsters would make a desirable stepmother.

His suit was received with favor, but before allowing announcement of the engagement, this ideal father decided to take the boys into his confidence. They hated the prospect with delight and were sworn to secrecy.

Within a few days the children of the neighborhood were holding a conference relative to the social standing of their various families. One daddy had a new car, one was building an addition to the home, another owned a $300 police dog.

Finally little redhead announced: "Well, anyway we're going to marry Miss Madden."

He Behaved

"Did you behave in church?" asked an interested relative when Tommy returned from the services.

"Course I did," replied the boy. "I heard the woman at the back of us say she never saw a child behave so."

Pony Would Fit Nicely

Billy got a fine big coaster wagon for his birthday.

"Boy," exclaimed Jimmy, his chum. "Don'tcha wish we had the pony to fit?"

The Gilded Lovers

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

HER name was Sarah Grafton—and they called her Sally! We have gone back to the days of our great grandmothers now and have our Sallys and Peggys and Bettys, etc.—we that are really in the swim. And Sally was decidedly in the swim. She was invited everywhere and went everywhere—no social gathering was complete without Sally Grafton. Peter Sotherland was of the same sort.

For instance, they both wished for money. For, while both swam smilingly and sportively on the glittering crest of the social wave, they were all the time aware of the depths of poverty which lay below them. Sally was an orphan with an old maid aunt, who stated herself to keep Sally going in the hope that the girl would make a wealthy marriage and bring home the sheaves so that the old lady might live in luxury for the remainder of her life. The aunt had cultivated a reputation for wealth by practicing a necessary parsimony; and as she seldom accepted an invitation anywhere, and herself never entertained on account of the expense, she had acquired a most enviable reputation for "exclusiveness."

As for Peter he had no near relatives, but many distant ones, all people of wealth and standing whom he used to visit occasionally. Everybody took it for granted that Peter had money—and Peter did not undervalue them. He had a few, a very few, thousand dollars which he hung to like grim death as his last resort. Why didn't he go to work? He had—several times—and each time the business he went into had gone "fluky."

Yes, both Sally and Peter wanted money badly, and another thing they both wanted was to get married—married to each other. But how in the world could they, under the circumstances? Not that Peter was aware of Sally's financial plight or Sally of Peter's. He supposed she was rich—and she supposed he was. But Sally thought too much of Peter to marry him under false pretenses, and Peter thought too much of Sally to marry her in like case.

And so they went on, looking and longing and scheming and contriving and keeping up appearances. Then one day Sally had an offer of marriage from a most desirable young millionaire and, weary of the struggle, asked time to think it over.

When she told her aunt, that estimable old lady threatened to turn her out bag and baggage if she did not accept. Sally sparred for time and got a month's leeway. In the intermission between the popping of the question and the date set for the final answer Cornelius Van Brough, the wealthy suitor, was unremitting in his attentions to Sally—and it got about that they were already engaged. Peter saw the attentiveness of Van Brough, heard the rumor and got desperate.

He met Sally at a dinner dance and whisked her off to that good old stamping ground of lovers, the conservatory. And there was no one rubbering behind the rubber plants to listen to them, either. He told her why he had not spoken before. Sally, with a joyful little cry, just fell into his arms.

"But," went on Peter, assuming a serious air as soon as the dear, delightful, rapturous little flurry was over, "there is one sacrifice I must ask of you. It is selfish of me, I know. But your fortune stands between us. Do you love me well enough to divest yourself of that fortune and share my poverty?"

Sally laughed. "Why, you dear old goosey," said she, "I have no fortune. I am a gilded eggshell, like yourself." "Horray!" cried Peter, "give me another kiss."

When Sally told her aunt that she had decided to refuse Mr. Van Brough's offer the old lady was in a rage. But she calmed down a little when Sally said that she had accepted the offer of Mr. Peter Sotherland.

"You are a fool to reject Van Brough," said the amiable old lady; "but Sotherland is not as bad as it might be. He is said to have money—and is mighty well connected. I wonder you had the common sense to accept him."

Sally did not tell her the whole horrible truth then and there. One stormy day from her esteemed aunt was, she felt, all she could reasonably be expected to stand. And when the morrow came she postponed the dire revelation to the following day. She would see Peter meantime and get from him some moral support.

And she did see Peter—met him by appointment made over the telephone. She found him almost bursting with suppressed excitement. "What do you think," cried he; "my father's second cousin, Peter Van Vorst Sotherland, an old bachelor—been living in California—has died and left me nearly half a million—because of my name, the will says. Lawyers notified me this morning."

"I suppose," said Sally, with a twinkle in her eye, "that I ought to ask you to divest yourself of your fortune before you marry me. But I won't. We took each other when we were both poor; and if people insist upon making us rich, why, we can't help it." So they parted off the next day and lived happy ever after.

Literacy Tests at The High School

Agnes C. New Voters Will Have First Chance to Take Tests at High School Thursday Night.

New voters are those who became qualified to vote since January 1, 1927, and they are the ones required to show proof of literacy. These voters became qualified since they were of age, becoming naturalized, acquiring legal residence in New York state.

In addition to other qualifications, new voters must show proof of their ability to read and write English. The proof of literacy which all new voters must present to election inspectors is one of the following:

1. A diploma from an eighth grade elementary school in which English has been the language of instruction, or of a higher school.
2. A certificate of literacy issued by the school authorities under the rules and regulations of the Regents.

Pursuant to the rules of the Board of Regents, the literacy test for the city of Kingston will be given at the high school on the following dates:

- Principal Frank L. Meagher of School No. 5:
- October 13 from 7 to 9 p. m.
- October 17, 18, 19 from 7:30 to 9 p. m.
- October 21 from 7 to 9:30 p. m.
- October 22 from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 9 p. m.

The literacy test will also be given to new voters on any school day from October 13 to October 21 at school No. 5, Wynkoop Place, from 12 m. to 1 p. m.

New voters presenting a statement signed by a school principal of having completed public school education up to the sixth grade or its equivalent will be issued a literacy certificate without examination.

The test given is not difficult. Upon passing it, the voter is given a literacy certificate which he produces at the time he registers.

The first test will be given tonight at the high school from 7 to 9 o'clock.

New voters are urged to take this test at the earliest possible date.

Noted Radio Artist At Victory Ball

Local American Legion Post Secured Vaughn De Leath As One of Galaxy of Talent for Social Affairs on November 11.

Among the radio artists appearing at the American Legion Victory Ball in the armory November 11 is Vaughn de Leath.

As might reasonably have been anticipated, the solidities of radio broadcasting into a permanent, ardent and universal institution, brings with it a blossoming forth of radio stars outstanding in popularity.

Vaughn de Leath, the "original radio girl" is a notable example in the metropolitan district.

Miss de Leath, successful as comedienne and musician, has been a radio star of the first magnitude from her initial appearance with Doctor de Forest, before any one of the present radio stations was even thought of and when broadcasting, in its present form, was only a vision in a few dreamy minds.

No other singer of popular songs has ever been better received or more persistently demanded by radio audiences not only as a singer of songs of her own composition, but as an interpreter of the songs of others.

Mrs. de Leath's unerring choice of songs that strike a note responsive to unvoiced desires, her sympathetic interpretations, unmarred by vocal acrobatics, the note of humanness left intact in the cultivation of her voice and, above all, the cheer and jollity and bubbling mirth implicit in her utterance, whether speaking or singing, incline to her the hearts of her audience.

T. B. Rate Higher In Young Women

Young White Women Do Not Share In the General Drop in T. B. Death Rate—Their Employment in Industry as the Cause.

New York, Oct. 12.—It is an industrial career making young women more susceptible to the ravages of tuberculosis than their brothers.

Whatever the cause, it is pointed out by the Statistical Bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, that while there has been a steady general drop in the tuberculosis death rate over a long period of years, there has developed a startling reversal in the sex incidence of the disease.

The change started in 1915, prior to that, tuberculosis took a heavier toll of life among white women between the ages of 20 and 25 than it did among young men of similar age.

In 1911 the tuberculosis death rate among white women in this age group insured in the Industrial Department of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company was 253.3 per 100,000, while among the white male policyholders of similar age it was 288.9.

The mortality among women was therefore only 91.2 per cent of that among the men. In 1912, it was 99.9 per cent, and in 1914 it was 95.1 per cent.

"In 1915," the Statistical Bulletin explains, "the mortality among the white women of this age group was 2.4 per cent in excess of that for males. In recent years the mortality among young females has actually exceeded that of males by more than 50 per cent."

This reversal of sex incidence has taken place during a period when the death rate has declined 65.2 per cent among white males at these ages and 46.6 per cent among white females.

Industrialization Suggested.

While not attempting to make a positive explanation of why young white women are lagging behind the general improvement in tuberculosis mortality, the Statistical Bulletin does have this to say:

"The death rate has declined much faster among the males than the females. It is difficult to assign a reason for this, but one possible reason may be suggested. During this period of years, and especially during the war years, there has been increasing industrialization of young women. It is difficult to prove that as more young women have been exposed to the stresses of regular employment outside of the home, the death rate of the sex has increased."

"We cannot emphasize too strongly the point that this changed sex incidence in the mortality from tuberculosis should not cause any optimistic as to the future of the campaign against this disease. We simply call attention here to the fact that contemporaneous with a declining death rate, something has occurred within the past fifteen years to cause the mortality among the young white women to be higher than that of young white men."

Boasted Chestnut Season Here.

The roasted chestnut season has arrived. James Foundas, the popcorn and peanut vendor at the State of New York National Bank, corner John and Wall streets, has received about 200 pounds of selected chestnuts from Maryland. They cost about 32 cents a pound to which nearly $5 had to be paid for expressage from Baltimore.

We see many girls who make us think at first blush that they must be having something they had on pressed while they wait.

Distinctive Fur Treatments in Imports for Varying Occasions

Left—A Georges de Janin Tailored Coat in Gray Green Cloth Has Its Straight Lines Offset by the Rippling Application of the Gray Krimmer. Pin Tucks and Touches of Lame Stitching Embellish the Surface.

Center—Sheer Black Velvet Lined in Gray Velvet is Chosen for This Vionnet Wrap, with Luxurious, Graceful Collar of Lapin Chinchilla.

Right—The Afternoon Coat of Black Broadcloth from Martail et Armand is Distinguished by Its Mosaic Fur Treatment in Black and Tan Broadtail in a Geometric Design. The Crashed Hood Collar and Deep Cuffs Are Interesting.

The Winter Coat, Much Refurbished, Deviates from the Straight Line.

New York—Compared with the importance of the winter coat, all else in the wardrobe pales into insignificance. Its purchase means usually the greatest expenditure, and because its usefulness must be well considered, to say nothing of warmth and general practicability, it is no wonder that most of us quail before the moment of final decision. The three types sketched are certainly not interchangeable. A woman in average circumstances could easily find occasions for all three. The all-enveloping coat, completely hiding the dress beneath, is by all odds the most practical choice, for it can then be pressed into service for evening, if finances or environment preclude a special evening wrap. This season black is the smartest choice, and while fur is really essential, excepting for sports, it is not necessary to select the most costly pelts at a time when effectiveness is the standard by which furs are judged. Shaved and curled lamb both are being used in Paris, where prejudice against cheaper pelts is unknown. Pony has been revived and there are antelopes and gazelles to keep one warm. If sables and minks are beyond one's reach. The straight line coat has come to be the exception, even in furs. Coats frequently stop midway to the edge of the skirt, in which case the flare is not essential, since the skirt usually supplies it. A fur border is essential, however, and the more irregular, the better. Sleeves are all so rather heavily trimmed, the general tendency being to employ as much fur as possible.

THE WRINKLED GOWN, INTERNATIONALLY SO, MAKES ITS APPEARANCE.

New York.—From the gown that wrinkles because it is badly fitted to the gown that deliberately acquires wrinkles, is a far cry. To have one's waist-line broken by a series of ripples—which sounds better, perhaps, than wrinkles, but is in truth the same—is to have a waist-line that exemplifies what many designers insist a waist-line should be.

Since skirts have a tendency toward front draperies, it stands to reason that smooth hips and some decoration in front must be called upon to accent the new line. By slightly crinkling or blousing the waist-line at the natural position, one gets a modernized princess line that is quite charming on the uncorseted figure.

One of the Many Satin Evening Dresses That the Couture Offer This Winter Is a Youthful Model in Flesh Pink From Jenny, with Fashionable, Circular Cut and Front Drapery Falling Below the Hem and Held by a Motif of Shirring.

One reads of V neck-lines for evening and of dresses that rely on the beauty of their outline rather than trimming for their decorative effect. The velvet crepe satin gown gains little by being elaborately trimmed. One recognizes it as a foil for beautiful jewels, and for beautiful figures. Lame materials of the supple, drapable types give variety to the mode, and vie with velvet for first place for evening, although velvet and lame are so often used together that one hardly thinks of them as rival, but as companionable fabrics. Rather newer than the shoulder-flower is a spray of flowers worn to one side of the shoulder, or a feather one worn at its tip. There are bows, too, and these serve as an excuse for a handsome and often spectacular pin or buckle. Chanel's clever idea of introducing a belt with rhinestone buckle for evening has been followed out by many lesser lights. Rhinestone buckles, by the way, are worn on simple day things as well, the harness buckle being the favorite.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(C. 1927, Western Newspaper Union.) "In a large part the inharmoniousness of servants arises from the growing sense of unwillingness to be directed and governed by the individual. It is the spirit of the age which rebels against the dictates of the individual but submits feebly to the despotism of an organization."

PEACH TIME

The luscious peach is a universal favorite and has been called the "children's fruit," because it seldom disagrees with them.

Its melting sweetness lends itself to any number of dairy desserts, although it is at its best, as are most of the tempting fruits, when it is served "as nature."

For the winter table there is nothing better liked than a well-prepared jar of Brandy Peaches Without Brandy.—This is an old fashioned recipe which has been tried and proven many times. Fill mason jars with carefully selected, perfectly ripe peaches which have been peeled, but not stoned. Fill the spaces with granulated sugar, shaking down well and putting in as much as possible. Seal as usual and bury in a hole in the ground dug three feet deep to below the frost. Line the hole with hay or straw and cover the jars with it, then the dirt. Leave until spring, or the ground is thawed, before digging up. When opened the fruit will be covered with a delicious sirup and will be much better flavored than by any other method of preserving them. Be sure to remember where they are buried.

Peach Ice Cream.—Cut up and put through a ricer sufficient ripe peaches to make one and one-half cupsful of pulp, add the juice of a lemon and one and one-fourth cupsful of sugar. Add one pint of thin cream and freeze as usual. Pack in a brick or melon mold and turn out on a platter, garnish with quartered peaches and sprinkle the cream with chopped pistachio nuts.

Peach Cobbler.—Peel and slice enough peaches to fill a deep plate, piling high in the center. Sprinkle thickly with sugar mixed with a tablespoonful of flour. Cover with a crust, leaving an opening for the steam to escape. Bake in a moderate oven until brown. Serve with cream and sugar.

That 4-hour morning grind! How do you prepare for it?

Workers who are keen, alert and energetic all through the morning have an immense advantage. Because nation-wide investigations among big business organizations (public utility plants, wholesale houses, and many others) show that 70% of the world's important work is compressed into the four morning hours.

Because it "stands by" you through the morning a breakfast of Mother's Oats makes a real difference in how you feel during your most important working period. Oatmeal provides energy and tissue-building materials in better proportion than any other cereal. It is rich in minerals, too—and vitamins—and tender bran, so valuable for roughage. For flavor, Quick Mother's Oats has been the choice of critical families for over fifty years. Skill in mill-making made the difference.

Start tomorrow to have Quick Mother's Oats breakfasts for a week. See how much longer your morning vigor is sustained!

Between 8:30 and 12:30 the important work of the world is done—in offices, schools and homes. A breakfast that "stands by" you is a real need!

Watch Your Gun and Avoid Trouble and Leggs Give Ten Commandments to Hunters to Prevent Shooting Accidents.

Albany, Oct. 12.—In order to prevent, if possible, the number of accidents that occur during the hunting season, Llewellyn Leggs, chief game protector of the Conservation Department, issued a special warning to hunters in a talk broadcast from W. H. A. Remondet Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y. He said: "The Conservation Department is deeply stirred because of the large number of hunting accidents that are occurring from year to year, and because of the great increase of hunting licenses in the state of New York, we are more anxious than ever to lend our aid in preventing accidental shooting. If all hunters will follow out what I have termed the ten commandments, it will be found that hunting accidents will be lessened."

The Ten Commandments.

1. Never carry loaded guns in automobiles or other vehicles.
2. In loading, never point a gun in the direction of your companion.
3. When afield hunting birds, keep abreast of and know the exact location of your companions.
4. In climbing over stone walls and fences, first break or unload your gun.
5. A bird quartering to the right in the vicinity of your hunting companions should never be fired on by a hunter on the extreme left. Vice versa.
6. Never leave a loaded gun standing against a tree or lying on the ground where dogs may get at it.
7. Always keep the gun pointed away from your companion when you stop to talk.
8. In handing a gun to a person for inspection, be sure it is unloaded.
9. Never shoot in the direction of your companion because you consider yourself a good marksman. You are taking a dangerous chance.
10. Carry your gun pointed to the left. If you shoot left handed, walk at the extreme right of the party.

Should Kill Vermin.

"I would like to say a word to my good friends who are listening in regard to vermin. Vermin such as foxes, predatory cats, owls and red squirrels are the most deadly enemies of our game birds, and it should be the object of every sportsman, when afield, to kill any of the vermin he sees that is so destructive. Game clubs should organize vermin days and see that their territory is free from enemies of our game birds and our game birds."

There is another matter which I would like to call to your attention, and that is the necessity of those who intend to hunt deer this year to have a special deer license which the legislature provided for in 1926 and 1927. The combination hunting, fishing and trapping license cannot be used to hunt deer. Every person who intends to hunt deer should get his special license before leaving for the deer hunting grounds."

"I wish papa could go, too."
"Well, don't you think he will?"
"Oh, no. He couldn't get away from the office."

An average man of today is the boy who was going to the devil a few years ago.

Mother: "Now, Willie, if you put this wedding cake under your pillow, what you dream will come true."

He: Any one can see a lot of grace in that dance.

She: You're wrong. Her name is Helen.

Who's Got Mine?
The rain though raining every day,
Upon the just and unjust, fell;
Falls chiefly on the just because
The unjust has the just's umbrella.

Binks—I've got something I want to tell one of those twins, but I can't tell them apart.

Jinks—Well, why don't you tell them together, then?

Binks—But I don't want to marry them both!

The easier she is on the eyes, the harder she is on the pocketbook.

The visitor held out her arms to the small boy of the house. "Don't you want to kiss me, Tommy?"
"No, I don't," said Tommy.
"Why not, dear?"
"Because you're ugly, that's why not."

"Tommy!" interrupted the boy's mother. "Aren't you ashamed?"
"Well," said Tommy, "I got punished for not telling the truth yesterday and I'm not going to run any risks today."

Broke Ribs in Fall.
Charles R. Abbott of the electrical firm of C. R. & J. W. Abbott, Saugerties, fell while at work in Woodstock recently and broke two of his right ribs. He did not know of his injury until several days after the fall and is now unable to work.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Scratchy or scappling sounds, according to location and type of loud speaker used, marked reception Tuesday night. The best stations, least affected by the disturbance, were WEAF, WRC, WEEM, WJR, WJZ and WGN. Something was squealing in WSM and there was complaint that something was interfering with WGY. The recent changing of WOC to 275 meters, already copied by WJZ, has certainly not been calculated to improve WGY.

Monday night WBAL was the star performer of the early evening, with WSM and WABC not far behind. Southern stations were very strong and western stations were weak.

Fall Festival At Clintondale

The Clintondale Improvement Association is acting as sponsor for an entertainment festival to be put on in the Community House beginning the middle of November. The course of entertainments consists of four numbers to be given on successive Tuesday evenings, beginning November 15.

Each number of the course promises to be of high order. The opening number will be a musical program given by the Lovelace Entertainers, twin brothers who married twin sisters. Their program consists of vocal and instrumental selections, featuring an Hawaiian musical sketch properly costumed. On the second evening, November 22, Miss Beatrice Weller will entertain with platform cartoons and wit. Miss Weller has traveled widely, entertaining the soldiers in France during the war and since the war has studied international law at the Hague and was present at the Locarno Peace Conference. Miss Weller presents an attractive program entertaining and instructive.

Geoffrey Morgan will speak on November 29, probably using the subject, "The Four Square Man." Mr. Morgan has served as a rural school teacher, professor in Ohio University and is a brilliant speaker of wit and enthusiasm. His lectures are practical, interesting and well seasoned with humor.

The final number of the festival will be given on December 6, by the Boston Harmony Trio. These three young ladies are masters with violin, piano and cello. The program they give is full of variety and of substantial musical value. Their music is sure to entertain.

Clintondale is fortunate in having talent of this quality come to the village. The course is being furnished by the Redpath Bureau. Season tickets will be put on sale about November 1.

Labor Cries for Wholesome Beer

And Demands That Courts be Deprived of Some of Their Power to Use the Injunction Against Unions.

Los Angeles, Oct. 12 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor's thunderous cry for "wholesome beer" and its demand that courts be deprived of some of their power to use the injunction against unions remained the liveliest issues before its annual convention here today.

A resolution favoring modification of the Volstead Act to permit the sale and manufacture of wholesome beer, defined as containing 2.75 per cent alcohol, brought a thunder of
"ayes" from delegates yesterday.

There was a scattering of "nays" when the question was put, but the affirmative was overwhelming.

News of the signing by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Pittsburgh of the decree making effective the sweeping court injunction against the United Mine Workers brought a barrage of protest from labor leaders assembled here for the convention.

SIGNAL MAINTAINER
DOES NOT LIKE BEARS

Corning, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP).—David Winner of Corning, signal main-tainer on the New York Central Railroad, Pennsylvania division, admits today that he does not like bears.

Yesterday, while seated on a pile of ties near Tiaughton, Pa., eating, he heard a noise and saw two bears and three cubs watching him closely.
He attempted to chase them, but one of the bears took after him.

Winner grabbed a hammer and dinner pail and quickly climbed a signal pole, where the bear held him prisoner for over an hour.

"ECHO," AT SCHOOL

Where dwellest thou, wild Echo,
may I know?

"No—"
Thou seemest in a churlish mood
today!

"Ay—"
"A's" the first vowel, what may the second be?

"E—"
Well answered, Echo! Now the third one try:

"I—"
That's quite correct. Do you the fourth one know?

"O—"
Who will first sound the fifth one,
I or you?

"U—"
Now, name the organ, please, by which we hear:

"Ear—"
Quite right! When lesson's done,
perhaps, we'll play:

"Ay—"
What should we play at, cards? Or chess or ball?

"All—"
To which card must we give the foremost place?

"Ace—"
What's to be done when with a ball
you're trifling?

"I ning—"
What do you most enjoy? Tell truly,
please:

"Ease—"
What can I do, then, to oblige you, friend?

"End—"
Such curt dismissal makes me woebegone!

But Echo answered gruffly:
"Oh, begone!"

Because modern girls are bricks is a long silence.

Self-satisfaction is a good thing not

Faith Needed
One of the needs of our time is to have the staple faith of our fathers poured into a twentieth-century mold. We need the old-fashioned religion—but dressed in a free and flowing robe and not in the strait-jacket in which the bigots would encase it.
We need more people who can say
"Our Father Who Art in Heaven," and really believe it.—Merle Crowell in

FRUIT TREES ARE HARMED BY PESTS

Not a year goes by but there are not numerous complaints of heavy loss of fruit trees due to the ravages of mice and rabbits. Injury from mice is comparatively easy to control. The succulent bark of the young tree is particularly tasty to them in the less months of winter, but as they are under the snow and do not climb the tree, some means of protection will prevent their damage. Ordinary building paper does very well, not the tarred, but the plain gray building paper. Cut this in strips 6 inches or 8 inches wide and tie around the trunk of the young tree, hankling up around the bottom with a little earth.
A better and more permanent way is to use wire protectors made from either galvanized wire of a fine mesh or from expanded metal lath. Cut this material into strips about 18 inches high and 16 inches or so wide to allow for expansion of the tree,
and fasten with small pieces of wire.
This material will last several years without replacing, and insures adequate protection against mice and against rabbits as far as the material reaches, but rabbits have the faculty of getting on top of the snow and chewing the branches above the snow line. This makes protection a rather difficult matter. There is not any really good treatment for rabbits, but the following poison has met with some success and is worth trying:
White arsenic, 1 part; corn meal, 3 parts. Mix thoroughly and spread about the area to be protected. A repellent which has also been used with varying success is as follows:
Unslaked lime, 20 pounds; flowers of sulphur, 15 pounds; water, 40 pounds.
Apply this to the trunks with a brush.
—M. B. Davis, Division of Horticulture, Central Indiana Experimental Farm.

Strawberries Protected by Covering With Straw

Everyone interested in growing strawberries in any way will find it a valuable thing to mulch the vines well before the beginning of severe winter weather. The best material and generally the handiest is to employ straw.
When the ground is frozen, apply the straw. Some four inches deep as the straw lies loose, is a good depth for the covering.
Allow the straw to so remain until early spring, or at the period when vegetation starts a growth. Then with the fork remove from directly over the hills or the matted rows of plants, about three-fourths of the straw, but leave it in the spaces between the rows. Allow it to remain in that position until the berries are all picked.
There are several advantages of the use of straw as winter protection of the plants. First, the plants do not become drawn out of the soil, if the winter season is one of much hard freezing. Second, by leaving it in the spaces, no grass or weeds can come up and much hard work is saved. Third, the straw so placed conserves the moisture, and fourth, the ripening fruit is kept free from sand or soil. This is mighty important, for unclean berries are hard to sell and fail to bring remunerative prices.
The whole process as described is not expensive, makes strawberry growing a pleasure and fully rewards anyone for the time and labor expended.

Low-Headed Trees Find Favor in Many Sections

The introduction of the San Jose scale a little more than twenty-five years ago created an immediate demand for low-headed trees. This extended to a point where many apple trees were headed as low as 15 inches.
Now, the open center type framework is popular for apples as well as peaches in New Jersey and many other fruit districts.

In the attempt to secure a low, open center apple tree, very little attention in practice has been given during the last 20 years to obtaining an adequate spacing of the framework branches upon the trunk.

This fortunately has not resulted in any serious percentage of breakage of tops in New Jersey. Stayman, however, and to a lesser degree, Delicious, have proved to be varieties that tend to form weak main branches if the main branches are too closely bunched.
All apple districts are, therefore, urging a better spacing of the main branches of apple trees. The open center type of tree is still the most popular in New Jersey. Because of this, a slight extension or distribution of the head is the corrective pruning recommended.—J. A. Blake, Horticultural, New Jersey Agricultural College.

Earliest Berry Bushes

Currents and gooseberries are among the earliest of our berry bushes to leaf out in the spring. For this reason the plants should be set in the ground where they are to remain permanently just as soon as possible. The plants will grow even though in full leaf before being transplanted. But they will not respond and make the strong growth the first year that they would if the plants were still in a dormant condition when they were set out.

Practicing for Saturday's Games

Grid Teams Use "Pitches" to Carry Out Opposition Plays—Sarcasm, Verbiage in Preparation for Coming Games.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—The personal relation in football, that of getting to know one's opposition before one actually sees it, has been brought into a few eastern camps as the various teams go through the work of developing offensive and defensive weapons for games just ahead.

Coach Bill Ingram, pricing his midshipmen for the Notre Dame assault Saturday at Baltimore, has rigged up a "punch" team to carry out Rockne's plays and each of the hapless first year men has been designated with the name of a Notre Dame player.

In other camps similar measures are being taken, barring those who have non-scouting agreements.

Two more strenuous scrimmage sessions were scheduled in the Yale camp in preparation for the battle with Brown University. Coach Tad Jones lined up his varsity against the second team only 29 yards from the goal line and told the regulars to push the ball over. The varsity scored only two touchdowns in several tries.

Harvard's first and second teams scrimmaged for an hour and then the freshmen were brought on for another hour. Several of the players were exhausted when time was called, but the workout afforded the coaching staff a better insight as to how the players will be able to stack up physically against Holy Cross Saturday.

Penn's line has not been charging hard enough to suit Coach Lou Young, so it is trying to remedy that fault. The Penn mentor came out with the statement that pie has been put on the training table. Young contends that the dessert does not impair the wind, contrary to general belief.

Princeton has been looking better and better in scrimmage. As the Washington and Lee game approaches, the latest varsity attack against the scrubs has netted three touchdowns.

Chick Meehan continues to push his New York University team hard for the Fordham contest. Fordham, meanwhile, was brushing up its aerial attack. Coach Cavanaugh planned to utilize Columbus Day for a double workout, as classes are not in session.

Columbia's varsity has been warned of the strength of the Colgate eleven. The players were told by Coach Crowley that Colgate's defeat last week indicated nothing so far as Columbia is concerned.

Syracuse spent three hours trying to strengthen its defense against the forward pass, in preparation for the Georgetown game. Coach Andreas changes his lineup frequently and was still dissatisfied with what had been accomplished when he called a halt.

Hesitates at Candy

The photograph shows Ralph Furey, captain of the Columbia University football team, debating with himself whether he should eat the lollipop in his hand, as it may affect his training for hard gridiron season.

Major League Star Also Is Reporter in Winter

Johnny Neun, Detroit Tiger first baseman, is a baseball player in the summer and a reporter in the winter.

As soon as he dons his Tiger uniform he hurries to his desk on the Baltimore Sun. At odd times he referees and writes about soccer games. He also is a basketball official.

Neun has been in many spectacular plays this season. He turned in the only unassisted triple play in the American league.

In a seven-inning game he stole five bases and made five hits, all singles. During a double-header with New York he stole home in each game, the second time under the eagle-eyed Herb Pennock.

Walker Invincible

Notwithstanding Mickey Walker's decisive victory over Tommy Milligan, there are quite a host of Britons ready to tackle the world's champion on reasonable terms. Their eagerness is due to a remark passed by Charles J. Cochran that there is not a boxer in Europe capable of defeating Walker.

Cochran's estimate of the situation while probably true, is rather quite broad and Walker may run into a snag of some kind.

The chap who is always seeking a pull is physically lazy. Has imagination minus vision.

Pan-Ams Dined, End Season Sunday

The officers and members of the Pan-Am baseball club were tendered a turkey dinner Tuesday evening at the Chateau on the Saugerties road by Manager C. O. Fromer, of the Pan-Am Oil Company here. The delicious repast was thoroughly enjoyed by all. After the dinner a business session was held and Trustees C. O. Fromer, John Ashdown and William Carpenter were re-elected with Booking Manager McNally to handle the financial propositions of the oil men during the next season. Vincent Hart was elected captain of the 1928 nine and William McDaniels, coach. Team members present were Robert Tierney, Charles Lay, John Carpenter, Stephen Dietz, Paul Joyce, John Celuch, Thomas McGuire, Robert McGuire and Leo Bulchovich.

The Pan-Ams will close their season here Sunday afternoon when they meet the Albany All-Stars. The locals played 56 games this season and lost but 11. The Saugerties road diamond is expected to be crowded for the final game Sunday when some of the Capital City's best baseball men will oppose the Pan-Ams.

Yankee Payroll Will Be Higher

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—By virtue of world's series performance, the payroll of the New York Yanks, now estimated to be between $250,000 and $300,000 annually, stands in a fair way of being still higher by the time Manager Huggins assembles his world's champions at the spring training camp.

Babe Ruth's contract of $70,000 a year has two more seasons to run. The Bambino was asking for $100,000 a year when he was compromised with Colonel Jacob Ruppert and accepted $210,000 for a three year term.

Lou Gehrig, voted the most valuable player in the American League, is certain to get a substantial salary boost while Tony Lazzeri, Mark Koenig, George Pipiras and Earl Combs, younger stars, also figure to increase their earnings.

Rickard Plans Lively Program

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—The indoor boxing season of 1927-28, especially so far as Tex Rickard's Madison Square Garden program is concerned, promises to be one of the liveliest in years.

Another brigade of heavyweights is being marshalled for a series of "eliminations" leading up to selections of a few "logical contenders" for Gene Tunney's crown by the time the outdoor season rolls around. In addition, renewed activity is forecast among the lighter divisions, especially in the flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight and light-heavyweight ranks, all of which involve some disputes about title ownership.

Within the next month such more or less prominent figures as Jack Delaney, Jack Reaugh, Jack Sharkey, Paulino Uzcudun, Phil Scott, the British champion, and Tom Heeney will be seen in action. On the outside, looking in, there is the so called "dark menage", George Godfrey, burly Philadelphia negro, who has claimed recognition by flattening Jimmy Maloney and Monte Munn.

Phil Scott and Paulino are matched for November 4, while Heeney is slated to meet Sharkey November 18, the winners of these two to be drawn together in a later elimination.

Lou Gehrig Most Valuable Player

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP).—Lou Gehrig, Yankee first baseman and heir-apparent to the sultanate of swat, should the perpetual Ruth ever weaken, has been designated by a committee of baseball writers as the "most valuable player" of the American League in 1927. Ban Johnson, league president, made the announcement last night.

Seven of the eight writers, one from each city of the league, named Gehrig as their first choice. The other first place went to Tony Lazzeri, Yankee second baseman.

Harry Heilmann, who won his fourth league batting championship this year, was runnerup to Gehrig for "most valuable player" honors. Ted Lyons, the White Sox pitcher, was just one point below Heilmann to rank third.

Y.M.C.A. Volley Ball Club Here

Tuesday evening at the Kingston Y. M. C. A. there was held a meeting which resulted in organization of a volleyball team. Ray Longendyke was chosen president, G. A. Craig, secretary-treasurer, and Frank DuFon, manager. There was also a committee appointed to purchase uniforms.

The representative team will begin practice shortly for the winter program and especially for the New York state tournament.
